SENATE WILL DEBATE FRENCH DELAY PLAN

Agreement to Postpone Any Allied Payments Is Not Likely, Belief.

SOME CONGRESSMEN FAVOR YOUNG REPORT

Howell Sees Loss to Country of $46,920,000 Unless Conditions Are Set.

By ALBERT W. FOX. America's unqualified acceptance of he new reparations settlement appears extremely doubtful in view of the first reactions here indicative of the tempe of the United States Senate. Ratification by Congress is necessary to make effective the approval which the executive branch of the Government is expected to give when the experts' report is merged into an agreement between governments.

Action by the Senate and House will not be called for, in any event, until after the governments have agreed, but debate, criticism and searching inquiry into the new report will come before the Senate this week in connection with the proposal to authoritze the Treasury Department to postpone collection of the $400,000,000 French wa supplies payment due on August 1 next In many cases senators are with holding comment and those who yesdiscussed the experts' repor were in some instances favorably inclined toward the program, but certain features of the report have attracted immediate attention, especially that feature whereby the allied government and Germany agree among themselves as to how they shall divide the benefits if or when America cancels the allied debts to the United States. Sees Senate Insistence.

It looks as if the Senate will insist on eradicating this debt cancellation germ before it ever ratifies the ment, and it is also practically certain that no action will be taken by the American Congress until France ratifie the $4,000,000,000 Mellon-Berenge debt agreement. The actual sacrifice in money which America makes under the new agreement makes ratification imperative and this phase of the report will be fully discussed this week.

Senator Howell, who has already made an exhaustive and critical examination of the report, said last night that his figures show that American taxpayers are sacrificing approximately $49,920,000 by the agreement. In other words, the senator explained that the new plan calls for a scaling down of last night and was met at the door by 12 per cent of payments due to the United States and the figures upon which he has based his detailed calculations will be given to the Senate this week. Mr. Howell will endeavor to get all the facts before the public and insist that the new agreement is clearly and thoroughly understood by the average American.

All things considered, the new government has met with surprisingly good reaction from the press. Even the most bitter opponents of what they have denounced as a Socialist regime have conceded that Premier MacDonaid has presented a capable government to the country deserving of being given a few change.

Plan to Oust Labor Wanes.

Naturally this admission has been coupled with much advice as to how the new government should conduct itself, but no longer is much talk heard itself, but no longer is much talk heard of combinations by opposing politicians to turn Labor out at the first opportunity and spring another costly general election upon the country.

David Lloyd George, the Welsh leader of the Liberals, possesses undoubtedly, although in much smaller degree than he had hoped, the balance between the two major parties, but it is generally he had hoped, the balance between the two major parties, but it is generally supposed that he will use that power discretely. The secession of William A. Jowitt from the Liberals to become a star in the Labor government may cause Lloyd George to wonder whether that example will prove infectious.

The question of election reform is now dear to the hearts of the Liberal party because recent triangular electoral contests, no matter whom they benefited, have not aided the Liberals. It is on this subject that the Liberal minority is likely to be most stubborn.

Great Britain, his appointed task.

Mr. Thomas already has a skeleton of Aurora, Ill., June 9 (A.P.).—Attorney bobert A. Milrey, of Aurora, plans to etition the Kane County Circuit Court of a reopening of the grand jury insetigation into the killing of Mrs. Illian De King in a dry raid last arch.

Would Raise School Age.

Broadly speaking. Thomas' idea for eliminating unemployment is based on three things—the restoration of normal trade, the establishment of permanent machinery for the prevention of unemployment and better treatment of the unemployed until they find work. Thomas favors the creation of a nation—al credit policy governed by the needs of the country's vital industries and not merely by private financial interpentation into the killing of Mrs. Illian De King in a dry raid last arch.

He wants increased pensions for those reaching the retirement age with a possible lowering of that age below the present figure, thereby taking from the labor market a greater number of inefficient, worn-out workers.

There is also proposed the constructive with credit facilities to farmers on more reasonable terms, to increase the amount of home grown food stuffs and decrease unemployment in agricultural districts.

The coal mines are to be modernized. Mining companies will be unified and there will be closer coordination besting the companies of the construction of the proposed that age with a possible lowering of that age below the present figure, thereby taking from the construction.

3 KILLED, 4 INJURED IN 3 PLANE CRASHES

Passengers in Two Ships Die, While Pilot of Third Wrecks in Landing.

ONE HELD FATALLY. HURT Far from any such announcement,

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 9 (N.Y.W. N.S).-One man was killed and two injured this afternoon when a sightseeing plane crashed on a lawn across the State road from the municipal airport 3 miles from here.

The plane, piloted by John Miller, son of Theodore A. Miller, superintendent of the Delavel Separating Co., took off at I o'clock with two passengers, S. Ward Sencindiner, of Northport Long Island, and Leo Smith, of Albany. They were working here as field agents for the American Telephone & Tele-graph Co. and hired Miller to take them up for a joy ride in his Travelair bi-Elyria, Ohio, June 9 (A.P.).—George Huneke, 20. of Elyria, was killed instantly and Richard Clark, 21, of Elyria, was injured probably fatally, in an airplane crash at the Elyria Air Service Field near here today.

Returning from a short pleasure hop. Carl Vanderver, the pilot, brought the plane within about 173 feet of the ground when it went into a tail spin.

plane within about 173 feet of the ground when it went into a tail spin. The pilot suffered only minor injuries, but Huneke was picked up dead and Clark was rushed to a hospital with both legs broken and internal injuries. Chicago, June 9 (A.P.).—Ernest Stewart, 23, a student aviator, was killed here today when he attempted to land his plane during a fog. Stewart's mother lives in Toronto.

Mistaken Identity Leads

New York, June 9.—Three men were wounded early today by shots fired from a sedan which drove past them as they were walking on the sidewalk. At a hospital, where the three were taken, it was said that Carmelo Buters, 39, and Angelo Folsone, 30, were in a serious condition, while the wound of Carmello Piccone, 28, was declared to be slight. The men told police they believed they had been mistaken for three other men who were walking just ahead of them and who ran to cover when the shooting began.

leader of the upper branch, has called a Democratic caucus for today in an effort to keep the minority partly solidly behind the debenture plan. Senators Fletcher and Trammell, Florida Democrats who supported the plan when it passed the Senate, are understood to be contemplating a shift on the conference report vote.

The tariff question also is scheduled for consideration at the Democratic caucus. Republican leaders are understood to be contemplating adoption of a rule to prevent introduction of tariff amendments on the floor, and Robinson is determined to prevent such an arrangement. He may balk at recess plans and refuse to agree to a time for the final tariff vote unless he is assured that Democrats will be allowed to introduce amendments when the bill comes out of the finance committee.

Then there is the national origins question. The Senate is now considering a resolution by Senator Nye (Republican), North Dakota, to repeal the clause of the 1924 i migration law, which would base immigration quotas on the national origins of the country's population rather than the census figures of foreign countries, the present system. U. S. Army Band Plays For Royalty in Madrid

The United States Army Band, now in Spain for the Iberian Exposition at Seville, has received a favorable reception, according to dispatches received by the War Department from the Military Attache at Madrid, Spain.

En route to Seville, the band remained in Madrid two days in order to give several concerts for the king and queen and the people of the city. One of the concerts was given in the principal public park, El Retiro, at noon, May 13, and another at the barracks of the Saboys Regiment. Then on May 14, the band gave a private concert for the king and queen, who are still in mourning for the queen mother.

Trenton, N. J., June 9 (U.P.).—Persistent reports that circumstances surrounding the fatal shooting of Miss Ruth Wilson and her former flance, Horace Roberts, jr., at Moorestown, a week ago, had been kept from the public, resulted tonight in rumors of possible action by Gov. Larson.

Attorney General William A. Stevens said that he was prepared to assume charge of a State investigation, if ordered to do so by the governor. Me intimated he expected official action in the matter tomorrow.

Authorities at Mooerstown have held both murder-suicide and double murder theories. First they accepted the theory that Roberts shot the girl and then himself because their romance had been disrupted and he feared the girl would not renew their engagement. Miss Wilson was shot twice through the head and Roberts three times. The tragedy occurred in the girl's room at ragedy occurred in the girl's room at Senator Reed (Republican) Pennsylvania, who is leading opposition to the Nye measure, has indicated he may resort to a fillibuster to defeat the proposal.

If he fillibustered until July 1 the national origins clause would become effective before any action could be taken. Such a fillibuster would keep the Senate in session until that time regardless of agreements on the farm relief and tariff controversies.

The Jones resolution, proposing a change of Senate rules to permit public consideration of presidential nominations, also is pending in the Senate. FRENCH AND GERMAN Innocent Man's Ghost Cause Of County Jury Sidestepping STATUS IS QUESTION

Second Kentucky Section Called On in Murder Trial a Every Resident Dodges Service Because of 70-Year-Old Tradition in Harrison.

SUBJECT IS KEPT SECRET

Harrison County citizens have again sidestepped serving on a jury which might have brought in a death sentence in a murder case. That spirit of unwillingness for such duty was instilled in these citizens' farefathers over 70 years ago, when an innocent man was hanged and his ghost walked hereabouts for years afterward, accord-ing to the story.

The trial of Homer Reeves has just

The trial of Homer Reeves has just ended. After every man in Harrison County whose name was in the jury box had either disqualified himself for trial service or had been turned down by counsel for defense or prosecution, Nicholas County was called on for a jury, which promptly found Reeves guilty of manslaughter instead of murder, of which he was accused, and gave him seventeen vears in prison. So der. of which he was accused, and gave him seventeen years in prison. So pleased was Reeves' defense that his chief attorney today said it was not likely that a rehearing would be asked. Reeves killed Ford Lyons in a fight last election day, religious differences playing a part, although the difficulty had nothing to do with the Smith and Hoover campaign. Reeves was placed under bond, but two weeks ago today left a suicide note in Cincinnati, and his bondsmen, being skeptical, offered $1,900 reward for him, dead or alive. Reeves was captured in Platt City, Mo, and denied knowledge of the suicide note. His defense claimed hereditary insanity, but this did not avail him

It was in 1847 that Harrison Countians made their "big mistake." David Sheely lived with his youthful wife near a fine fishing stream. Some Senators Critical.

Some senators were frankly critical of the debt-cancellation phase of the report but praised other aspects. Senator Swanson, ranking Democratic member of the foreign relations committee, sounded the keynote for this class of opinion, as his detailed interview given in this article will show. Senator Dill's sudy of the report convinces him that Congress should proceed very cautiously before giving its approval.

"I think we should go very slowly before we ratify a proposition which calls upon our people to put up money which the international bankers will use to float the bonds by means of which America will ultimately assume responsibility for liquidating the financial burdens of a European war."

Sacrifices Draw Few Comments. Sacrifices Draw Few Comments.

The sacrifices which America is called upon to make came in for less comment last night, and there was a tendency to believe that America can take effective safeguards against debt cancellation while at the same time allowing the allied nations to suggest their own agreements as to how German reparation payments to them will be disposed of.

"If the settlement between Germany and the allied nations is satisfactory between them," said Senator Swanson, "T can see no reason for any criticism

Postal Telegraph's Pension Plan Begun

$5,000,000 Is Set Aside as an Initial Fund for New Benefit.

New York, June 9 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—An initial fund of $5,000,000 has been set aside by the Postal Telegraph-Cable Co. in a new pension and benefit plan for about 20,000 employes after July 1. The plan is designed after that of the International Telephone & Telegraph Corporation, with which the Postal is affiliated.

Under the plan, male employes may be retired by the company after they reach 60, and women after they are 55. On their own request, male employes may be pensioned after they become 65, and women after they are 60. The pension is payable monthly during the life of the retired employe and amounts annually to 1 per cent of his average annual pay during his term of service multiplied by the number of years of service.

ALLEGED RUM RING'S

Federal Permit Seems Possible Damper to Prosecution for Conspiracy.

New York, June 9 (N.Y.W.N.S.).— The legal status of the Go-Bart Co., all leged society rum ring, whose offices at 200 Fifth avenue were raided Thursers and the seizure of wines and liq-uors estimated at $150,000, will be gone into thoroughly tomorrow by United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle. While at first the prohibition forces seemed elated over what was consid-ered by them one of the most impor-tant raids in recent times, the case has assumed a rather somber aspect with the belated discovery Saturday, that the Go-Bart Co, had, ever since that the Go-Bart Co. had, ever since 1930, operated under a Federal permit to "import, withdraw and sell wines for sacramental," as well as "other wines and distilled spirits." The per-

As soon as the existence of the permit was learned by Mr. Tuttle two days after the raid was staged, there was a conference between him and Prohibition Administrator Campbell. Much secrecy still surrounds this conference, Mr. Tuttle and Maj. Campbell refusing to admit whether new legal difficulties confronted them as a result of the existence of the permit.

"Do you think," Mr. Tuttle was asked today, "that the permit under which the Go-Bart Co. operated will make it difficult for the Government to prove a case of conspiracy?"
"I want to be more intimately acquainted with the facts," replied Mr.
Tuttle, "before I can answer this question."

"Is it possible," he was asked, "that the Government's case may fail completely due to the fact that the GoBart Co. operated under a Government permit, especially since the permit was couched in such broad terms?"
"No. 1 don't know of says such possible."

"No, I don't know of any such possi-"Do you think it would be difficult for the Government to prove that the selzed liquor was obtained in violation of the Federal permit?" "I will not discuss that espect of the case." Mr. Tuttle said, "until I have studied the facts."

Meantime, there is still considerable mystery as to whether the raid, staged by the forces of William J. Calhoun, chief of the New York undercover men, was done with the knowledge and co-operation of the office of Maj. Camp-bell, or whether it came as a complete

A Great Liner ... The Aquitania

A Ship with a Personality

"If you possibly can, cross in the Aquitania," people say. And they are not thinking only of her two flowerfilled garden-lounges overhanging the sea; or the deft, cheerful service of her perfectly trained English staff; or the fact that the Aquitania's famous à la carte service is available without any extra charge.

They are thinking rather of the special charm that differentiates the Aquitania, that something which wins the loyal devotion of so many people and which is difficult to define. Something that gives vitality to her days and animation to her evenings making the six-day voyage from New York to Cherbourg or Southampton the "pleasantest distance" between two worlds.

MR. SPROUL'S BELATED ALARM.

The Congressional Record has become so unreliable that it is impossible for the reader to distinguish between authentic debate and "canned" speeches which have never been delivered. One of these specimens is an alleged "speech" by Mr. Sproul, of Kansas, purporting to have been delivered in the House of Representatives on May 21. It is printed in the Record of June 5. The delay in printing, and certain internal evidence, such as absence of interruptions, indicate that the speech was never delivered at all. Yet Mr. Sproul permits this to appear as if he had spoken it on the floor of the House:

Do the big oil companies have representatives in the Congress who are large owners of stock? Are members of Con gress retained annually to watch and protect the interest of the big oil com-

These great companies spend millions of money in advertising at liberal rates. They can and do control the policies of the press. Little thought need be given to the source of the money with which to do all this extravagant advertising. The press throughout the country receives weekly or daily advertising, requiring large amount of space. This advertising is accompanied by a check in a liberal amount which subordinates the policy of the paper to meet the desires of the oil companies. This policy amounts to a subsidy; it amounts to a retainer for the control of the policy of the paper. By reducing the price of crude a cent a barraising the price of gasoline one quarter of 1 cent per gallon, the required mount of money is forthcoming without the poor uninformed public knowing one thing about what has transpired.

Mr. Sproul uses this language in the course of an argument in support of an import duty on crude petroleum. His alleged speech carries the implication that Congress and the press are so corrupted by "an industrial oligarchy comosed of gigantic organizations of capial" that it is impossible to put through a duty on crude petroleum.

But why does Mr. Sproul confine the corruption to Congress and the press? The President of the United States opposes a duty on crude petroleum. Is he not corrupt also? An oligarchy strong enough to control Congress and the press would hardly be so stupid as to permit itself to be thwarted by a mere President. Another cent or two per galion on the price of gasoline would provide a liberal subsidy with which to corrupt the President.

One reason why the poor uninformed public may fail to take alarm at Mr. Sproul's disclosures is the revelation that the United States is already in the clutches of another octopus, the "power trust." Why has Mr. Sproul so criminally delayed his exposure, thereby permitting Senator Norris to give the "power trust" exclusive control of the Government and the press? In sounding the alarm it is always wise to be prompt, for there is keen rivalry among alarmists as well as among octopuses, and the first alarm is always the most alarming.

The gigantic oil trust will not thank Mr. Sproul for his negligence. It now takes second place as corrupter and subsidizer of Congress and the press. It might have been first, if Mr. Sproul had actually delivered his speech and printed it before Senator Norris monopolized the

Take a lesson from this mistake, Mr. Sproul. Study your case, and make your claims early and broad. Don't confine your charges of corruption to a limited circle, like Congress and the press, but widen them to include the President and the Supreme Court. If the people are to be placed under the control of any octopus they demand that the control hall be complete, so that they shall have only one boss.

PRINCE GEORGES COOPERATES.

Although 'the District for some time has celebrated a theoretically "safe and sane" Fourth of July, the holiday has invariably en made unpleasant with innumerable firerks explosions. The police have not been able to be everywhere at once and "shooting crackers" have been comparatively easy to tain. About this time of the year, highways come scenes of feverish activity. Maryland patriots, who were not averse to making an honest dollar out of a holiday, were erecting flimsy wooden shacks in which to set up business as fireworks purveyors to residents of the District. This year a similar story of activity is being written along the highways leading into Maryland, with the exception that in Prince Georges county the zoning laws have been invoked to prevent the erection of temporary fireworks dispensaries.

The only reason that Independence Day is celebrated with the discharge of fireworks is that traditionally the day is one of explosive enthusiasm. Starting 25 or more years ago, the safe and sane movement has made steady progress. More communities today celebrate without fireworks than with, and their celebrations, which are no less hearty, are attended with considerably fewer casualties. It is only a question of time until fireworks are generally outlawed.

Prince Georges county, in determining to prevent the erection of unsightly fireworks dispensaries, has taken a step it will not regret. Washington appreciates the decision and looks forward to the day when other counties lying along the District line will do likewise.

FRENCH FILM CONTROVERSY.

The Franco-American motion picture film controversy seems to be no nearer solution today than it was more than a year ago, when Will Hays made a compromise under which the so-called 7 to 1 quota was adopted. Simply stated, the 7 to 1 quota arrangement made it necessary for American distributors to purchase one French film, good, bad or indifferent for every seven American films they were permitted to distribute in France. This agreement expired recently, and the controversy

Why is France so specially concerned over her public's preference for American films? She would attempt to establish her film industry on a prosperous basis, of course, but her opposition to American films is more deeply rooted. An article published the other day by M. Jean Sapene in the French press is enlightening. "The truth is," he says, "that the Americans are trying to enslave Europe to their ideas, and the question is whether we wish to remain independent or be conquered. The question goes even further than the French film industry, for it concerns all French industries and commerce."

Following publication of this attack, the Paris Matin ran an editorial signed by Pierre Gilles, one paragraph of which read as for-

The Americans are trying to make Europeans give way to their ideas and rightly believe that the propaganda in motion pictures which permits the American influence to be placed before the eyes of the public of all countries is the best and least costly method of spreading the national influence. It has been said in the United States that since American films have been scattered to all parts of the globe the country's commercial exporta tions have increased extraordinarily and that the sale of American goods follows closely everywhere upon the track of the

On May 27 the French cinema commission approved a 4 to 1 quota for American and other foreign films in place of the present 7 to 1 quota. At the same time it appointed a committee to draw up all the other proposed solutions to the controversy and submit them to the government. Its action was somewhat in the nature of a double compromise. Not only did it fail to adopt a 3 to 1 quota, as it had threatened, but it left the final decision open to further discussion. Last Wednesday. at the request of American film producers, the Department of State forwarded to the embassy in Paris, for transmittal to the French government, a document embodying the American protest against the 4 to 1, or any other quota. On the same day the International Cinema Congress of Europe, representative of many nations, proclaimed the necessity of national motion picture production and frankly favored the adoption in all countries of a contingent method of limitation of American film imports.

On Friday Senator Shortridge attacked on the floor of the Senate the 4 to 1 quota suggestion. "It is to be hoped," he said, "that the Government will make it perfectly plain to France that we do not look with indifference on this threatened attack, and that if the film industry is barred out of France by regulations and demands amounting to an embargo, we shall find ways and means to convince that republic of the unwisdom and folly of her legislation." Senator Shortridge concedes the right of France to impose tariffs on American films, to impose licenses and internal taxes on distributors and to make rules and regulations for the exhibition of American films in France. He asserts that the 7 to 1 quota was actually hurtful to the French industry in that it resulted in inferior pictures that found no natural market, and predicts that if the 4 to 1 plan is enforced it will not only bar American pictures from France but will practically destroy the French industry. "If France wants good pictures," he said, "we have them to sell. If she learns to make superior pictures, America will buy them. But we have set a high standard and will not be forced to buy pictures that our people do not enjoy and will not patronize." In Senator Shortridge's statement may be read a solution to France's film troubles. Let the French government help the home producer to improve his product until it can stand on common ground with American films. There is an insatiable demand for good pictures. No quota arrangement will create a market for inferior films. In the meantime, the French government can rest assured that the United States will not accept the quota proposition, and that American distributors will withdraw from France before they will agree to an arrangement which in effect would make them pay for the development of a competitive French film industry.

UNIFORM WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

The annual conference on weights and measures concluded its sessions in Washington with the adoption of resolutions urging State legislation to establish uniform weights and measures. Uniformity is also to be sought in regulations for enforcement of weights and measures statutes. The conference found present systems of dry measurement highly unsatisfactory and advised that weight, numerading out of Washington into Maryland be- ical count or measurement in standard containers be substituted in all commercial trans-

The work of the conference was of a technical nature. Its activities are nevertheless of far-reaching importance to the public, for a large portion of the commodities purchased in everyday life must be weighed or measured. That part of the discussion in which the public will find most interest centered about the distribution of gasoline to the millions of motorists. As a result of a survey made by the American Automobile Association, the conference was informed that motorists are losing $20,000,000 annually through short measurement. The report estimated that motorists receive 100,000,000 gallons less than they pay for and that one-sixth of all the gasoline sold is measured short.

This huge loss to automobile owners may be as much a result of poor standards of measvrement as of fraud. At any rate it is a challenge to the oil industry to check up on retail distributors, and to the States to see that their motorists are protected. Enactment of the weights and measures code adopted by the national conference some years ago can meet with no reasonable opposition. The improved system of measurements could be enforced for a fraction of the sum which is reported to be lost annually by motorists through short measurement of gasoline.

LIQUOR FROM CANADA

From the Manitoba Free Press.

The Hansard report of the debate on the issuing of clearances on liquor exports to the United States shows that Mr. Euler, minister of national revenue, in defending the practice. tooked at it mainly from the viewpoint of departmental administration. * * *

Mr. Euler may be literally correct in saying that, since the government refused to include in the anti-smuggling treaty of 1924 an agreement to cease granting liquor clearances, as requested by the United States at the time, the spirit of the treaty is not violated now by continued refusal to take that step. But the people of Canada will be reminded of the strange character of that treaty. It was entered into by the governments of Canada and the United States for the avowed purpose of preventing smuggling on either side, but the Canadian government reserved the right to officially approve the exporting of liquor to the United States, though it could not be legally taken into the country. At the present time the boats are loaded with the liquor in the presence of a Canadian customs officer and official clearance is granted to some point in the United States. And official recognition of the fact that the government is facilitating the smuggling of liquor across the line is also shown by its collection of $9 a gallon in excise duty on the liquor because no landing certificate can be returned as in the case of export to other countries, upon which no tax is im-

Mr. Euler's argument included three main points-that the government had already done a great deal to assist the United States in preventing the flow of liquor from this side; that the United States was not making anything | man's liquor. like the effort that it might make to stop the liquor running; and that, if clearances were not granted, the traffic would simply be driven underground and the customs branch would have a big new task in coping with this development. The government has shown cooperation in many different ways, including the recognition of the 12-mile limit, the reduction in the number of liquor export docks at Windsor, and the closing of the export houses. The latter step was generally approved as it ended the importation of liquor for export to the United States. But a great many Canadians will wender why the government, which thought it advisable to stop that traffic, continues to countenance the export to the United States of liquor that is made in Canada.

The minister dwelt upon the apparent lack of effort on the part of United States officials to prevent the liquor smuggling, and it is known that there has been much corrupting of preventive officers on the United States side. as was bound to happen when daring and unscrupulous men were engaged in an exceedingly profitable traffic. The minister admitted that it was impossible to prevent the smuggling of liquor into eastern Canada from St. Pierre Miquelon. The United States might make a more intensive effort to stop the liquor running on the Detroit and Buffalo fronts, but it can not be overlooked that if they did remove this cause of complaint by the minister, there might also be precipitated a very serious situation in those boundary waters. The vessels of the United States preventive service are armed, and more vigorous activity on the part of those manning them might easily lead to complications and very serious friction between the two countries.

If the clearances were stopped and also the release of liquor and beer from distilleries and breweries for export to the United States, there would still, no doubt, be some liquor running, but it would be on a much smaller scale. Mr. Euler fears, however, that the prevention of this would add very considerably to the duties of his department. Mr. Euler evidently looks at the matter too much from the purely departmental point of view, and thus differs with the parliamentary committee in 1926 and the royal commission since then, both of which bodies were thoroughly familiar with the whole situation and unanimously recommended that the issuing of clearances be stopped. The members of the royal commission were Sir F. X. Lemieux. chief justice of the supreme court of Quebec; Chief Justice Brown, of the court of king's bench in Saskatchewan, and Mr. Justice W. H. Wright, of the supreme court of Ontario.

The exporting of liquor to the United States is not illegal as far as Canada is concerned, and Mr. Euler contends that it makes no difference what the law is in the United States. and that shipping liquor is the same as shipping potatoes or anything else. A radically different view is taken by a great many people in this country. They think that when liquor can not be imported legally into the United States and when the United States explicitly asks the Canadian government not to sanction such exports, clearances should not be granted. They feel strongly that Canada should not aid and facilitate the violation of the law of a neighboring country.

LORD KITCHENER.

From the very start of the war, writes Graustein, of the International Paper Lord Beaverbrook in The World's & Power Co., it has been suggested that Work, the presence of Lord Kitchener he may be an ardent comic-strip fan produced a curious atmosphere in the British government. The wit who invented the tale that aft : a long exposition of the militar, position Kitchener leaned back, lit a cigar and remarked to the assembled cabinet: "And now let's talk about the Welsh church, could not have got farther from ac-

Kitchener was frightened of the politicians and ill at ease with nearly all of them. He had the soldier's professional and professed distrust of the class-and only Grey and Asquith surmounted the prejudice. Consider his career, his military upbringing, his prolonged absences from English life, the Oriental reticence in which he had dipped his mind. To him the men of law of persuasion, of the energy of speech, were like some strange animals out of another world. Mr. Asquith seemed to understand him.

Kitchener was a shy man, and though on some unbidden occasion sentences of great power and simplicity would rise suddenly to his lips in the intimacy of a private conversation, he added to the soldier's inability to explain that curse of nervousness that prevents a man speaking at the very moment when he should and must speak if he is to pre-

He motored along a prairie road in Kansas, watching the birds roused note. from the bush by the sound of his car. When, occasionally, one flew Excessive Charges in Auction off directly in front of him instead of to one side, he was able to chase it and time its flight with his speedometer.

A' only ten miles an hour he found he could keep up with the undulatin flight of the scissor-tailed flycatcher. A Baltimore oriole increased his speed to twelve miles. Stepping on the gas a little harder, Dr. Wood caught up with a prairie horned lark flying at fifteen miles an hour. Seventeen miles, and he was close pressing a night hawk and an Arkansas flycatcher. Then Dr. Wood sounded his horn, raced his motor and startled the birds into greater bursts of speed. He found that most small birds, driven by fear, can travel much faster and even sometimes, at twice their normal speed. A scared prairie horned lark he passed at 23 miles an hour and others were faster.

the Democratic party until 1932." There is not the slightest reference in this statement to the dinner given to honor Mr. Shouse, nor have I at any time ever made any statement concerning that dinner. Whoever wrote the statement in your column has never communicated with me, nor had any communication from me. It is simply another illustration of the recklessness of reporters in attributing statements and conduct to persons without any verification whatever. Women House Members Plan For Vacations

Two Will Give Accounts of Stewardships to Constituents.

By JEAN ELIOT. T HE feminine "Congressmen"— to use the designation preferred by the ladies of the House—expect to leave Washing-ton as soon as the Congress re-cesses, most of them bound for their homes. But their plans remain more or less tentative because of the uncertainty as to what is to Representative Ruth Byran Owen has planned perhaps the busiest "vacation" of the lot. One of her preelection promises was that she would make an annual report to her constituents as to what had been going on in Washington and her part in congressional ac-tivities. So as soon as she can get away she will start for Florida to make a speaking trip around the eighteen counties of her great district, telling the people "back home" all about it.

For a little while this summer Mrs. Owen had her youngest daughter, Miss Helen Rudd Owen, with her in Washington, but the little girl is now visiting her sister, Mrs. William P. Meeker, in Baltimore and will remain as her guest while William P. Meeker, in Baltimore and will remain as her guest while Mrs. Owen is barnstorming.

Representative Ruth Hanna McCormick will go from Washington to her home at Byron, Ill., to look over her model farm and cast an editorial eye over the newspaper which she owns. Later she hopes to take her family to her ranch in Wyoming for a few weeks of rest and recreation. Representative Ruth Baker Pratt is also looking forward to resting during the recess, but has not made plans as to where she will spend her vacation. However, she will go first to her home in New York. Representative Edith Nourse Rogers submits that she has been too busy to make plans. Neither Representative Pearl Peden Oldfield nor Representative Katherine Langley could be reached in a casual survey. However, when Mrs. Rogers is not in Washington she is usually in Massachusetts, studying the needs of her district and keeping in touch with her constituents.

A trip to Europe this summer had figured in Representative Mary Norton's dreams, but her tentative plans were given up when President Hoover called the extra session of Congress. So she expects to go to Allenhurst, N. J., where she usually spends part of each summer. Representative Florence Pragg Kahn will make the long journey to her home in California, even if Congress recesses only for a few weeks. Her sons live there and her mother, a very old lady. Moreover, she believes in looking after her fences even if it is not election year, in giving a report of her stewardship and in making a first hand survey of the needs of the men and women who sent her to Congress.

How to have a large wardrobe

Many women have wisely resorted to the use of our service for an extensive wardrobe. Dyeing of dresses to new popular shades, tinting, spotting, plaiting, all these means will give you enviable clothes. And expert cleaning renews that "just out of the shop" look. There are many Bornot methods. You may need the use of only one to make a garment look truly new. No need to experiment. Let us use our judgment and experience to your benefit and satisfaction.

Poincare were added today to the list of avowed candidates, consisting of Doumergue, Paul Doumer, president of the Senate, and Ferdinand Bouisson, president of the Chamber of Deputles. Poincare is not heavily favored despite his rescue of the franc, since France has never elected a president for a second term. And for the same reason the candidacy of Doumergue probably will be withdrawn soon. probably will be withdrawn soon.

Briand appears to be the favorite, although much may happen in French politics in eighteen months. Briand is widely known as an international apostile of peace and his popularity with the average Frenchman is great.

Doumer is a political artist, quiet and dignified. He directs debates in the Senate without turning a hair and is an excellent orator.

A year ago Boulsson reached the crest.

A year ago Boulsson reached the crest

A year ago Boulsson reached the crest of his political glory, but now he is not in the good graces of many of the Socialists of his own party. He is from, Marseille and very popular in the south, but as president of the chamber he has many opportunities to lose friends.

The one-term tradition may be abrogated for Poincare. He spent his seven years as wartime president in one long struggle to keep French domestic poli-tics from falling apart until victory was complete. His record is outstand-ing, and there is a growing sentiment that France can best reward him by a quieter seven years term.

French presidents are not elected by popular vote, but by the national as-sembly sitting at Versailles. The con-gress is composed of the senate and the French presidents are decorative, rather than operative. In reality the president is commander in chief of the French army, navy and air force, but the constitution does not allow him to declare war or sign a treaty without He has the power of grace in dealing with condemned prisoners, but is forbidden to extend amnesty. He can propose laws, but they must be introduced with parliament's consent. He chooses the premier, who runs the government for him, but his greatest power lies in his ability to dissolve the chamber with the consent of the senate.

A 9-foot fireplace is to be an important feature of the lodge. After arriving at the preserve late Saturday, the President and his party made an incursion into the stream and came back with about 20 trout. Mr. Hoover also spent some time in inspecting the work that had been done on the preserve since his last visit and noticed that underbrush and low-hanging limbs had been largely cleared away to prevent such an accident as several weeks ago caused him a black eye.

Meals were cooked for the party at the preserve by the chef of the nearby camp of Marines, who are doing much of the work of improving the President's playground.

In the first chapter the Bradys go o Missouri to clear a gang of outlaws out of Central City. Big Bart Brown is the leader. Fifteen of the gang rob the ticket office at the horse fair, and the Bradys decide to follow up the case. A Boston banker literally tumbles into townwhen the stage is smashed up. Old King Brady decides to go direct to Blueburg—the banker's destination.

TRAPPING THE "TERROR" OF TOD-DLETON.

CHAPTER II. T. Bradley Turner Runs Into Trouble. N response to the banker's question as to his identity. Old King Brady replied that he was "Mr. Kip."
"My name is T. Bradley Turner, of loston, Mass."

"I am pleased to meet you," Old King Brady answered pleasantly. 'I see your hands are full—it must be very awkward carrying those bags all the time."

doesn't follow that we will meet them tonight."

"No. We are going at once, and I know the road. If we hear these men coming we can take to the woods. It is forest almost all the way."

"Well, I believe I'll go." said Turner. "It's a risk any way. Could you waithere while I hire horses for myself and daughter?"

"Certainly."

"O'ertainly."

"I' will be as quick as possible, Mr. Kip, and I'll trust you to wait."

"I' will be as quick as possible, Mr. Kip, and I'll trust you to wait."

"We will if you are not too long."

"I'll be as quick as I can," and off trotted Mr. Turner with his two suitcases. As an afterthought he called to one of the hotel darkeys to help him with his other cases and got nothing but insolence in reply. Harry volunteered to help him, and so carried the big bag after the Boston banker, much to the disgust of the landord and the loungers in the office.

Harry was gone a long while and finally came back alone.

"Where are your Boston friends?"

"Suit of the thought hard with a short."

"And your money?"

"And your money?"

"And your money?"

"They have not got my money yet. I fooled them. I was warned against the Toddleton gang before I ever left Boston. Those suitcases were a blind—they were stuffed with old newspapers."

"Then just as soon as the gang dis—were a stuffed with old newspapers."

"Then just as soon as the gang dis—were and the propers and the going mad now."

"Your daughter"—

"Was carried off by those dreadful men. I think I shall go mad if anything happens to her. I think I shall go mad if anything happens to her. I think I shall go mad if anything happens to her. "That man will hardly make a sucsess at Blueberg," commented Harry.
The people probably will never give the girl. She made no kick at starting out."

"Well," said Old King Brady, "it is my belief that some one had warned them about Gunyon, and they were determined to get away."

They heard the footfalls of horses ahead of them, and both kept silent for a few moments. They rode on, but did not catch up with the travelers. At the top of the rise a thick forest lined the roadway on both sides, making an excellent place for a hold-up. It was not a great distance from Toddleton, the holdout of Big Bart Brown.

Suddenly shots disturbed the silence. They were followed by a woman's scream.

daughter, surest thing!" answered

"Well, what shall we do?" asked Harry.

"Let us dismount and sneak forward through the woods till we can get sight of the place"

So they turned in among the trees and, making their horses fast, stole forward toward the light. A short distance further and they came to a small clearing. On the right were the ruins of an old frame house and large barn. In front of the house, stuck in the ground, a pine torch burned, shedding a fitful light upon the dreary scene. There was a flagpole behind it and against the pole, with his hands raised high above his head, was a man. It was the Boston banker.

Old King Brady Finds a Cine.

Old King Brady Finds a Clue.

Turner had been roughly handled. His clothes were disarranged and his face was bloody. The horses had vanished, likewise the girl. The grip and dress suitcases were gone.

"I prefer to keep them by me. But I was about to say that I am determined to go forward to Blueburg tonight, in spite of the accident. The clerk tells me you are intending to wouldn't object to myself and daughter going with you."

"Certainly not. We are intending to go on to Blueburg, but if you will accept my suggestion you will remain here until morning."

"I certainly ought to—but I am determined to go on. Why did you make that remark?"

"Because only this afternoon some members of the notorious Toddleton gang were in town and stole $60 at the horse fair."

T. Bradley Turner gave a start and the will case was bloody. The horses had vanished, likewise the girl. The grip and discusses were gone.

"Back to the woods," said Old King Brady, after a moment's reflection. "We had best ride up boldly. If the outlaws are lurking in the house they will be pretty apt to show their hand."

'Hello, there! What's this all about?" shouted Old King Brady, as they boldly rode up to the flagpole. There was no answer from the banker. He simply stared at the Bradys.

"Remain on guard, Harry!" ordered the old detective. He then dismounted and with a few strokes of his knife, cut the banker free. The man had been gagged. As this was removed, he gasped with relief.

"Who are you?" he quavered. "I suppose you belong to that dreadful gang."

landlord and the loungers in the office.

Harry was gone a long while and finally came back alone.

"Where are your Boston friends?" asked Old King Brady.

"Gone!" replied Harry with a short laugh. "Turner hired two horses and bought one. He lifted his daughter into the saddle, mounted himself, after loading his belongings on the third horse. Then he turned to me, tossed me a quarter, and said, There you are, young man; much obliged. Then they rode off and left me standing in the street like a fool, with the quarter lying at my feet."

Old King Brady burst into a hearty laugh.

"I don't see anything particular to laugh at," replied Harry in an annoyed tone.

"No doubt you feel highly insulted, my dear boy, but there is no need. That is the Boston of it. He was afraid of my big hat—thought we were members of the gang nd that our offer to help was only a trick. In other words—he is badly scared. Well, let us he off. More than likely well. "We haven't seen our Boston banker," Harry remarked.

"No; but he can't be vary far ahead," was the reply.

"That man will hardly make a success at Blueberg," commented Harry.

"The people probably will never give him a chance to get established."

"They don't like his kind. All the same, the man may be brave enough when it comes to a fight."

"I think he showed that by taking the road alone at night. Then there's the girl. She made no kick at startsee what happened. He was suddenly startled by a wild shriek. It was the yell of a mantac—any one could tell that. He turned and ran out of the house toward the place where he had left the house.

"Who are you?" he quavered. "I with her mother, Demeter, and the suppose you belong to that dreadful copy will grow. There will be green must return to the Underworld and live with Hades."

"You are the old man I met in Gundon't say so!" he cried. "But that dreadful country. I wish I was back in Boston."

"Yes," said Hades, "I shall let her return for a little while, but she must come back to the Underworld, for she has tasted food here." Demeter was overjoyed when her daughter came back to her side, and she allowed the soil to bear crops again.

In that way the Greeks let their fancy play on the changes of the seasons. We may feel sorry for Demeter; but was she not spiteful to use her sadness as an excuse for hurting mankind by keeping the crops from growing part of each year? Uncle Ray

LISKA HURLS NATS TO 5-2 VICTORY OVER INDIANS

Tennis Titles To McLean, Shore

Ex-Central Player Defeats Welsh in 5 Sets to Retain Title.

McLean Takes Boys' Honors by Beating Hunt, 6-3, 6-3.

RANK SHORE and Jock McLean yesterday were crowned District junior and boy tennis champion, respectively, by virtue of well earned victories on the Columbia Country Club courts in the finals of the tournament conducted by the Washington Tennis Association in cooperation with the Welfare and Recreational Association. It was Shore's second funior triumph in two years and entitled him to possession of the Dumbarton trophy for another year. For McLean the victory brought the boys' Dumbarton trophy, while both of the winners earned the distinction of being picked to represent Washington in the Middle Atlantic boys' and juniors' tournaments at Norfolk on June 21 and 22.

Shore met Bernard Welsh, No. 1 of the Western High School Team, in the struggle for junior supremacy and swept aside the last obstacle in his path to another championship in a manner that left no doubt of his guall-path to another championship in a Philadelphia today, 5 to 4. The Philmanner that left no doubt of his qualifications. Though Welsh played some of the best tennis he ever has shown, the was no match for the lanky Shore eight and ninth innings. fications. Though Welsh played some of the best tennis he ever has shown, he was no match for the lanky Shore when the latter uncorked his reserve strength in the last two sets. The scores were 4-6, 6-3, 4-6, 6-3, 6-0.

McLean's Victory by Scores of 6-3, 6-3.

McLean, as predicted by close obervers, did not have much difficulty No. 3 on the Eastern High Team, in the boys' titular clash. The winner apparently could have gained the decision earlier than he did, but he was content to walk off with scores of 6—3.

6—3. In the last three games of the final set, Hunt failed to score a point. The courts were heavy from Saturday's rain and the players resorted to lobbing for the most part. Only seldom did any of them attempt hard driving. McLean and Hunt gave a much better display of driving than did the older contestants.

Shore's greater variety of strokes and wider experience supported him when it seemed that Welsh was traveling toward triumph. The Western lad won the first and third sets in brilliant fashion, in fact, making Shore look anything but a champion strokes until he found himself on the verge of losing his title, and then when he faced an uphill battle he made quick work of Welsh.

Third Set le Feature

Of This Match.

This match was featured by the third set in which thrilling volleying duels had the spectator on the edges of their seats. Here Shore was superior but nevertheless Welsh took the set after it was tied at 4-4 by chopping to Shore's back hand, which at that juncture was not performing smoothly. The fifth game of this set was deuced nine times with both players doing some ragged work at the Shore was calm when he came back for the set was calm when he came back for the set was calm when he came back for the set of the Shore was calm when he came back for the fourth set but his foe appeared nervous, and then the title-holder began smashing drives past the Westerner and dumping lazy little lobs just over the net out of his reach. The fifth set was nothing but Shore, Welsh netting the ball three times on game points and falling a victim to the champion's accurate placements. continued on Page 12. Column 7.

Local Entries Sought For S. Atlantic Meet

Local officials of the South Atantic games committee last night issued an appeal to District athletes to swell the number of the Capital championships to be held Saturday at Central Stadium.

In order that additional entries may be filed, it was decided to delay the closing of the entry list until tomorrow at 6 p. m. Entry blanks may be obtained at the office of A. A. U. Commissioner Ernest J. Spitzer, 343 Munsey Building; the office of the Welfare and Recreational Association in the Navy Building; leading sports goods stores, and the sports departments of all local newspapers. The meet offers local athletes a final opportunity for fine competition in a sesaon which so far has not included a single meet open for all classes of amateurs. Saturday's meet is open to club, high school, college or unattached athletes.

Landis Decides McCullough Is

B ASEBALL COMMISSIONER KENESAW MOUNTAIN LANDIS yesterday took another crack at President Clark Griffith, when he ruled that the Nationals' deal, whereby they paid approximately $20,000 to the Toledo
American Association Club for Pitcher
Paul McCullough, would have to stand.
This decision was made against the Washington Club despite the fact that the player himself had at one time admitted that, because of illness, he was satisfied that he would be unable to play baseball this season and had requested that his name be placed on the "voluntarily retired" list and in view of his admission, and that of the Toledo Club, that it was a bonus offer to suddenly change his mind and report here.

The baseball czar in the past has been a great stickler for ruling against anything which has smacked of collusion, but this question, although admitted by the Toledo Club and the player, it is understood, apparently was ignored by Landis.

McCullough was unable to report to the Nationals at the spring training camp due to an attack of influenze. Later he suffered a recurrence of this aliment, followed by a complication of diseases and finally admitted to Scout Joe Engel that he was confident he would be unable to play this season and joined with the Nationals in requesting retirement.

The pitcher did this, showing up at the Nat park about two weeks ago. He was 22 pounds underweight and, on Landis' orders, was sent to Johns Hopkins Hospital at Baltimore for a physical examination. The physicians' report evidently showed that there was nothing organically wrong for Landis' nothing organically wrong, for Landis' decision was that there was no evidence presented proving that the pitcher will be permanently incapacitated as a player.
As a result of this ruling, McCullough remains on a nonpay status with the Nationals until he gets him-

But, although the Nationals were a ways in the van, their margin was me olarge in these days of ten and twelrun innings that they could do at loading, and it was here that the Wasi ington offense figured so prominently.

Twice the Cronin-to-Hayes-to-Jude combination "killed two birds with or stone," while two other twin murde were staged via the Judge-to-Cronin-to-Judge route. Besides these sparkling lays, the home fielding was sharp ar snappy in general, all of which mast Liska's road to victory easier.

The Municipal Playground Department's elementary school baseball finals will be the center of interest during this week to the 3,000 or more youngsters who have struggled for fourteen league championships in seven divisions since early in March.

Today, Wheatley and Lenox Schools will meet on the Plaza playground in a game that will decide the Eastern section championship in the senior tourney, while Blow and Lenox juniors will play on the same field this afternoon to decide the junior Eastern winners.

The schools that ultimately win the junior and senior titles will have achieved something that they will may be proud of. In tourney about 70 teams have competed from every section of the city, the largest baseball organization in the city by far.

Out of these grade schools series some famous baseball players have sprung. At present there are three former District playground grade school diamond trains playing major league ball, a record that few if any playground systems in the country can boast.

The Eastern sectional winners in both

Young McLean assumed early leads in both sets against Hunt. In the first he won three games before Hunt railied and registered twice. McLean then snapped back into his starting stride and gained a lead of 5—2 before dropping a game on his own service. He copped the ninth and decisive game by quickly ringing up three points after the game was tied at 30—30. Hunt was unsteady throughout, playing sharp, accurate placements at times but pounding the ball into the net more often. With the games 3-all, McLean worked up stream and completely mastered the Eastern youth.

Italy in the third round, completed today, three matches to two.

Italy, which won the doubles yesterday, succeeded in getting an even break in the last two singles matches today but that was not enough to overcome the lead Germany piled up on Thursday by winning both of the first two singles matches.

Today, with the score standing 2 to 1 in Germany's favor, Baron H. L. de Morpurgo, of Italy, evened the count by defeating Dr. Heinz Landman, 6—4, 6—0, 7—5, but Hans Moldenhauer villenched the series for Germany by defeating George de Stefani, ambidextrous Italian star, 6—3, 3—6, 5—7, 6—4, 6—3.

Barnes Likely to Play

The second game of the series with the Indians is carded for this afternoon with Irving Hadley and Joe Shaute the likely pitchers. As the latter is a southpaw, the Nats probably will line-up with Barnes in left and Flagstead in center. Although both Barnes and West are left-handed hitters. Manager Johnson believes that the redhead is the better against unorthodox hurling.

Goose Goslin reports that his alling leg muscle is improving but he is likely to be kept inactive for another day or two.

Larry Boerner, former Central High pitcher, is trying to make a deal with President Clark Griffith which will net him a job either with the Nationals of with the Washington-owned Atlanta Southern Association Club. Boerner, who won three while losing ten games with the Toledo Club, of the American Association, finished last season with Musical features of the ceremonies will be provided by the United States Barine Band. The invocation will be pronounced by the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Washington. Benediction will be by the Right Rev. John M. McNamara, auxiliary bishop of the Catholic Diocese of Baltimore.

WRC will broadcast a session of the national conference for conservation of the Nation's petroleum supply from Colorado Springs, Colo., between 12:30 and 1:15 o'clock today. Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, Secretary of the Interior, will be the principal speaker, with a short talk by Mark Requa, chairman of the conference, also scheduled.

Robert P. Lamont, Secretary of Commerce, will speak over the radio for the makes the principal address during the ceremony to dedicate the Great Northern Railway's new "Empire Builder" train at 9:30 o'clock, from WRC.

The train will leave Union Station, Chicago, for its first run during the broadcast. Graham McNamee will occupy a specially constructed booth in Union Station, from which he will describe the ceremonies. Other features of the program include solos by Reinald Werrenrath, American barytone, and Obed Pickard, who will sing old-time railroad songs.

DEAR FROM CRYING!

The Once Over By H. I. PHILLIPS=

THE SAD CASE OF THE SPINACH ADDICTS.

Children can be trained to like spinach. It's all done by stimuli. The Institute of Child Welfare Research at Institute of Child Welfare Research at Columbia Teachers College has been doing it for the last year. Different taste stimuli, pleasant, unpleasant and awful, were given to the children over a period of thirty days, after which the kiddles got so accustomed to it that they didn't mind.

According to the teachers, some children became so fond of it that they became addicts. This brought the experiments to an end and frightened the teachers very badly.

It is all very well to change over a child to a point where he will eat spinach without a battle, but it is another thing when the little one gets so he becomes a regular spinach hound and wants it in everything, including attraybarry shortcake.

"It gave me an awful scare," con-fessed Miss Matilda G. Schwartzburger, one of the teachers who conducted the big spinach experiment. "When I saw the little dears taking their spinach with a smile and not even muttering at me, I was delighted," she said today, "but when they began to demand it three times a d...y, and even for dessert, I grew cold all over.

The model at the right is of shell-pink handkerchief linen and, although simple, has a less utilitarian aspect. Side pleats, both front and back, become tucks at the shoulders and hips. The applied vestee and string belt are good details. (Vogue designs No. 9812 and No. 9813.)

. . . . "Then I realizede what had hap-pened. The children had become spin-ach addicts. It was pretty terrifying. I couldn't get any spinach then, but I fed them raw dandelion greens while I summoned the faculty. The faculty saw the situation at a glance. To de-prive them of spinach suddenly would have made them nervous wrecks. We had to let them taper off over a period

With grey garments, of course, one can wear nothing but gray gloves. With black one wears beige or white. Strangely enough it is seldom that one wears black gloves with a black ensemble—when black gloves appear on the scene, they usually strike the keynote of a printed ensemble or lend character to a white outfit or one in pastel colors. With grey garments, of course, one

Hall-Mills Murder Story Is Doubted

Detroit Police Say Prisoner Claiming to Be Witness

Is Imaginative.

Detroit, June 9 (A.P.).—Kenneth Gladue, whose story that he was a witness to the Hall-Mills murder has gained him some attention and may lead to a reopening of the seven-year-old case, supplied more details today to substantiate his statements.

Gladeau, who is a Federal prisoner in the Wayne County jail here, awaiting extradition on charges of violating the Dyer and Mann acts, claims to a known of the county jail here, awaiting extradition on charges of violating the Dyer and Mann acts, claims to a known of the county jail here, awaiting extradition on charges of violating the Dyer and Mann acts, claims to a known be present in the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall was shot to death and his choir singer, Mrs. Eleanor Mills, was slashed across the throat. Gladeau even has produced the knife which he says was used to kill Mrs. Mills, Investigators here questioned the prisoner concerning disposal of the $3,000 which he said was paid as hush money. Gladeau said he went from New Brunswick to New York City and from there to Leavenworth, Kans., where he purchased a laundry.

Detroit authorities have been skeptical of Gladeau's story, declaring that since his arrest on May 2 he has given them tips concerning other crimes and has shown considerable imagination.

STRONG SECURITY FOR BONDS The Cavalier of Washington, D. C.

NE of the soundest forms of investment is that which is secured by real estate—land chosen with a view to future as well as present values-buildings thereon that are adapted to a known rental demand. THE CAVALIER OF WASHINGTON, D. C., constitutes strong security for an issue of bonds offered by The F. H. Smith Company, for it occupies a unique location in the important upper Fourteenth Street district of Washington, D. C., one of the most thickly populated residential sections of the city, which is a community within itself. Here is a location chosen with a view to future as well as present values; here is a building adapted to a known rental demand. We believe this section is entitled to a fine apartment hotel and that this building fills a recognized need. In fact, there is probably no other section of Washington that is more in need of a well-managed apartment hotel than this rapidly growing upper Fourteenth Street community. The F. H. Smith Company has been a pioneer in financing the development of fine properties in the National Capital, not only in this section, but in the downtown business section and in the Potomac Park section. Time and again its sound judgment has been proven.

THE CAVALIER OF WASHINGTON, D. C., 3500 Fourteenth St., N. W. The Cavalier of Washington, D. C., occupies the entire frontage on the west side of Fourteenth Street, Northwest, from Oak Street to Otis Place. It is a modern freproof apartment hotel. On the first floor there is a spacious lobby, a public dining room and seven stores. Apartments range in size from one room and bath to six rooms and two baths.

A Smith Offering

In November 1928, The F. H. Smith Company offered an issue consisting of $1,950,000 principal amount of 61/2% First and Refunding Mortgage Coupon Gold Bonds, to be secured upon completion of the present financing by a First and Refunding Mortgage on the land and building, including fixtures and equipment, known as The Cavalier of Washington, D. C. The bonds of said First and Refunding Mortgage issue mature serially, the maturities ranging from five to twenty years, so that the issue is to be reduced before final maturity to $1,560,000. There is also secured by this property a $350,000 61/2% General Mortgage Bond issue which is subordinate to the first and refunding mortgage, and, until completion of the refunding, to the underlying mortgage.

Underlying Mortgage

The lien on this property which underlies the First and Refunding Mortgage consisted originally of $1,400,000 63/4% first mortgage bonds dated April 1, 1926, an equal principal amount of the first and refunding mortgage bonds being held by the Trustee under the first and refunding mortgage and released only as underlying bonds are retired and cancelled. To date (June 7th, 1929) the amount of this underlying lien has been reduced by the refunding operation to $568,500, as $831,500 principal amount of the bonds secured by the underlying mortgage have been retired and cancelled Under the terms of the first and refunding deed of trust, the obligor covenants that on or before April 1, 1935, it will cause to be paid and satisfied all underlying bonds.

Valuation of Property $3,000,000

The Cavalier of Washington, D. C., was appraised by Ford, Bacon & Davis, Inc., nationally known engineers and appraisers, and their certificate of valuation is quoted below:

"Based upon our inspection of the Cavalier Apartments, an apartment hotel located at 3500 14th St., N. W., Washington, D. C., we hereby certify that the Estimated Cost of Reproduction New and the Estimated Cost of Reproduction New Less Depreciation of this physical property, comprising the land, hotel building and fixed equipment as existing November 1, 1928, based upon prices of materials and labor prevailing in Washington at that date, are as follows:

Estimated Cost of Reproduction

Estimated Cost of Reproduction As of Nov. 1, 1928 Less New $ 851,950 $ 851,950 Building and Mechanical 2,148,050 2,191,050 Equipment Total $3,043,000 $3,000,000

"The value of land shown above has been furnished to us by responsible local real estate experts.

"The allowance made for depreciation represents the loss due to accrued physical deterioration, as observed by our engineer. Supersession, due to obsolescence, changes in business conditions, or to any other cause, has not been considered.

"The above estimated costs include allowances for cost of financing and such overhead costs as organization and legal expenses, engineering and architectural supervision, interest, taxes and insurance during the period of construction.

"Our inventory does not include furniture and fixtures, miscellaneous equipment, miscellaneous supplies chargeable to expense, or stationery.

"No allowance has been included in our estimates of building and mechanical equipment for any value attached to good will, advantage due to location, going concern, or any other elements of intangible property.

"In accordance with your suggestion, we are pleased to attach to this letter a folder which contains the names of a few of our industrial and banking clients. This, of course, is very incomplete and no mention is made of the very considerable clientele which we have among utilities. It may be of interest to you to know that we have recently completed the longest and largest high pressure gas line in the country, and that we are now carrying forward another similar enterprise in the South of even greater length. In addition, it may be of interest to you to know that it is not long since we completed the Pontchartrain Bridge, which at that time was the longest bridge of its type in the world. Our work has not only included projects of this character, but also harbor developments, irrigation systems, power house design and construction, electric street railway and utility operations. We believe any large financial house in the country is familiar with our work.

First and Refunding Mortgage Refinancing In General

First and Refunding Mortgage Bond issues, as the name implies, are utilized when a property is refinanced, it being necessary to retire existing liens during the period of refinancing. Consequently, First and Refunding Bonds are subordinate to the underlying liens until the obligor has retired such underlying liens. Under the terms of the Deed of Trust securing a First and Refunding Bond issue, bonds of such issue in excess of the amount of the obligations secured by all underlying liens are issued for sale at once, but the remaining bonds of such issue being equal in principal amount to the obligations secured by all underlying liens are not released at once, but are held by the Trustee named in the First and Refunding Deed of Trust. As the obligations (bonds or notes) secured by the underlying liens are retired and cancelled, bonds of the First and Refunding issue in equal amount are released by the Trustee. When all of the underlying liens have been retired and released the First and Refunding Bonds become complete First Mortgage Bonds.

Estimated Earnings as a Basis of Valuation

The earnings to be derived from a property which is properly adapted to the purpose for which it is to be used constitute a most important factor in the basis of valuation of the property. The earnings to be derived from The Cavalier of Washington, D. C., as estimated by The Cavalier Corporation, owner of the property, are given below. This estimate is a part of the representations made to us by the owner:

The estimated net annual income of $209,750 being approximately 7% of $3,000,000 is an excellent return on the valuation of this type of property. These estimates were based upon the plan of the owner to convert a majority of the apartments into furnished apartments with hotel service, which, in the judgment of the owner, will produce the maximum income that may be obtained from this building considering its unique location and other advantages. It is estimated by the owner that between November 1, 1929, and January 1, 1930, the property will be approximately at its maximum income, since the management is not renewing any leases on one, two or three room unfurnished apartments, but is installing furniture as rapidly as these unfurnished apartments become vacant.

Rental Plan

The rentals under the plan upon which the above estimate of earnings was based compare favorably with those of other well-managed apartment hotels in Washington. Rentals were estimated as follows: (The furnished apartments have complete hotel service while the unfurnished apartments do not.) $4,950.00 90,882.00

(some with porches) furnished, at $93.50 per month

5 apartments of 3 Rooms, containing vestibule, living room, bedroom, dinette and kitchenette, dressing closet, Murphy bed and bath (some with porches) furnished, at $123.75 per month.

0 apartments of 4 Rooms, containing vestibule, living room, bedroom, dining room, kitchen and bath (some with porches) unfurnished, at $110.00 per month 111,375.00

month

25 apartments of 5 Rooms, unfurnished, containing vestibule, living room, two bedrooms, dining room, kitchen and bath (some with porches) at $126.50 pt 39,600.00

month

2 apartments of 6 Rooms, unfurnished, containing vestibule, living room, three bedrooms, dining room, kitchen, 2 baths and porch, at $160.00 per month

In addition there are seven stores which the owner estimated will yield $9,000 per year and a dining room which it estimated will produce a gross income of $72,000 a year, based upon daily receipts of $200 per day, thirty days per month, when the property is in complete hotel operation.

The above rental plan aggregates $369,597.00.

445 Diplomas to Be Awarded at 130th Commencement This Afternoon.

Nevils as "a great victory after years struggling," officials of Georgetown ersity laid the corner stone of its $1,000,000 Medical-Dental School ng yesterday afternoon and dedited it to the mission of "adhering to -tested and approved doctrines of science and freedom from agnostic teachings."

Impressive ceremonies marked the occasion at the site of Georgetown's proposed enlarged medical center on Reservoir road, as the apostolic delegate to the United States, the Most Rer. Pietro Fumasoni-Biondi, bestowed his blessing on the corner stone and the large audience joined solemnly in a prayer for the fulfillmnt of the purposes to which the new schools of medicine and dentistry were dedicate.

Winding their way through the wooded college walks, the faculties and seniors formed an academic procession that marched for half a mile from the college campus, where they had formed. The exercises at the site of the new building were opened by Dr. John A. Foote, dean of the medical school, and on behalf of the dental school, and on behalf of the dental school, and on behalf of the dental school, and on the sim ade the closing remarks and in disclaiming credit given to him for carrying out the first step in the development of a great medical center, said he wished publicly to pay tribute to the great sacrifice which the Rer. Walter G. Summers, the regent had given to the upbuilding of the medical and dental schools.

"This faculty has not found it either desirable or necessary to teach agnosticism or to disturb the religious belief, whatever it might be, of any student within these walls." Dr. Foote added.

"Is it any wonder that there are many who distrust the sort of education in which the blased personal beliefs of a mental gadabout supplant the time-tested and approved doctrines of science?"

Georgetown Baccalaureate Warns of Rebellious Spirits

Auxiliary Bishop McNamara Tells Graduates Hoover's Call for Law Respect Proves Need of Return of Religious Influence in National Life.

Coupled with a statement that "the altar has lost its place of honor in the Nation's heart." the Right Rev. John M. McNamara, Auxiliary Bishop of Baltimore, in his baccalaureate sermon to the graduating classes of Georgetown University yesterday declared that the necessity of a return of religious influence was exemplified in President Hoover's call for law enforcement.

The President's action, coming at a time when a lack of respect for law and corder and religion has, brought this country to a point of "national decadence," Bishop McNamara said, will prove "a testing of man's need of God in the government of man."

Referring to present day conditions, he warned that "the present spirit of revolt against law and order" is "not confined solely to the gangster and the racketer," but is shared by so-called respectable elements of society. "Popular theories that give no consideration of man's responsibilities to God," Bishop McNamara said, have resulted in a "free rein being given to advocates of a new philosophy and rule of life whose creed is "What I like," that is right."

So long as such conditions exist, combined with a public opinion that regards wealth as the measure of a man and disregards private or property rights for personal gain, he intimated, there can be no hope of a change for the better in this country.

The minor though equally well-played characterizations are portrayed by Barbara Bennett, Jacob Frank, Jennie Moskowitz, Louis Sorin, Robert Gleckler, Tyrrell Davis, Allan Vincent and Lesile Stowe.

As in previous pictures, much is made in "Mother's Boy" of songs, Mr. Downey singing eleven times during the unfolding of the story. "I'll Always Be Mother's Boy" and "There'll Be You and I" are the outstanding numbers which, though not what might be called sure-fire hits, are tuneful and well adapted to the drama. "NOAH'S ARK." Warner Bros. production, with talking sequences and sound accompaniment. Cast led by Dolores Costello, George O'Brien and Noah Beery. Directed by Michael Curtig. Reviewed (second week) by C. Ransom.

The astonishing film spectacle of the estruction of a wicked world by delige, as told in Genesis, with its terri fying noises and its World War parallel.

Using three of the cast of "Syncopation" and employing Al Jolson's "The Jazz Singer" as a model, Bradley Barker has formed from another Gene Markey story a photodram which, while not phenomenal in any way, is highly entertaining and very well done. To Morton Downey belongs the first honors, for it is around him that all the action revolves, and he acquisite himself nobly, although at times affecting too severely the Jolsonian method in rendering his songs. Beryl method in rendering his songs his method in rendering his songs. Beryl method in rendering his songs his method in rendering his method in rendering his method in rendering his method in rendering his songs his method in rendering his meth building blocks and paraphernalis, have been simply given free rein to realizing that nursery enpulse. The effect of this magic is staggering. Whoever can still play will regret it if he misses this version of Noah and his ark.

But there remains something infantile in the handling of the tremendous theme. There are adults, even in movieland, who could and would have found in the story of the deluge some deep and moving spiritual meaning to be conveyed, and who would have modded their narrative and managed their gigantic materials to bring it forth. Unfortunately no such definite intelligence seems to have been active in the pouring out of these millions of gallons and dollars. Apparently it took so much creative effort to build and destroy. The incidents are drastic enough and there are many effective bits of action that hold the attention throughout, but in a film of this stature the false touch and the paltry motive are more offensive than in the common run of movies. The attempt to draw a parallel between the ancient flood and the modern war is feeble and to some perhaps pointless. You come away from the tremendous commotion feeling principally a confined to Miss Costelle, nor to George O'Brien and Noah Beery. The passengers on the Faris-Constantinople train, in the opening scenes, are a fascilland as the waters.
